"Going Down to Mary's." He was a queer old man who boarded the train at an small station in western New York. Two young men, who were probably his sons, brought him to the steps of the car and helped him on, and as he entered the car he was greeted heartily on a car and was very happy.

"The children kept it to me till I had to promise to go," he said as he sat down. "Hain't bin down to Mary's in five years, and I've got so old I can't wait any longer. It's purty tough on an old man like me, but I want to see Mary and the grandchildren."

"I take it you are going to spend Thanksgiving with your daughter?" remarked the man on the seat ahead. "That's it, Mary's my oldest gal. Got five of 'em, and all married off. She lives down at —, and she would have me come and make a visit. Mary was allus a good gal, and she married a good man. You'll tell me when I get there, won't you?"

"Oh, yes." "Cause they'll all be there at the depot to meet me. My son Steve will take it I was coming."

He had about forty miles to go, and when we passed the first three or four stations he was anxious for fear that he would be carried by the right one. After that he leaned over on the window and fell asleep. Just before the train arrived at — the man who had spoken to him turned about and said:

"Come, grandpa, you get off here." The old man did not move, and the stranger arose and shook his arm and said: "Wake up, grandpa! This is your station, and Mary and the grandchildren are waiting. Come now."

But he spoke to the dead. The old man had died while he slept—passed away so peacefully that not a line of his face had changed. And we were yet stranded and crying when Mary and her husband and three happy children came hurrying into the car and shouted:

"Here he is. Here's our grandpa come to spend Thanksgiving!" "But he was with his God.—New York Sun.

Prince Bismarck's Wooling. Prince Bismarck began his wooling in a rather stormy manner. As he always favored energetic measures, he was direct to the young lady's parents, with whom he was not acquainted, and demanded their daughter in marriage. They were simple folk, leading a very quiet life, and they were rather frightened at the reputation for high living which the candidate enjoyed.

Their daughter, however, interested in discreet terms that she did not look upon the young gentleman with an unfavorable eye, as there was no doubt the young man's parents had a good reputation. Consequently the young lady's parents invited Bismarck to come and see them. Every one did his best to give the visitor a suitable reception. First, an air of grave solemnity, and the young lady stood with her eyes modestly bent upon the ground, when Bismarck, on alighting, threw his arms around his sweetheart's neck and embraced her vigorously before any one had time to tell him that his conduct was hardly proper and correct. The result was, however, an immediate betrothal. Prince Bismarck is very fond of telling this tale, and he is careful always to finish the story by this reflection: "And you have no idea what this little lady has made of me?"—Philadelphia Record.

In view of the hard times and with a prospect of one-quarter time during April, and to avoid public appeals for help by those in need, would it not be well to begin laying sewers through the streets of this borough? We need the sewers. The working man is willing to do the work, the tax paying public are willing to pay the bill, and the money will eventually return to the channels from which it came. Gentlemen of the council, give us sewers, provide work for those in need and do it at once.

Injured While Coasting

Impure Blood Ascerts Itself

But Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures the Disease and Restores Health.

"C. I. Root & Co., Lowell, Mass.: "During the winter of 1887, I was injured on one of my while coasting. It did not trouble me much at first, but soon became more painful, my strength began to decline and I could not rest at night. I was attended by several different doctors but all failed to check the trouble and I grew rapidly worse. Early in 1889 I had to use crutches and my health was very poor, having lost my appetite and being reduced in flesh. In the fall of 1891 I had to take to my bed and it was thought

I Would Not Live until spring. During all this time I had tried many different medicines but did not get relief. In the meantime to give me relief, the several leeches around my knee were lanced and I later every effort made to heal the running sores but all in vain. Then it was, while confined to my bed last spring, that my father, having read much about the merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla, decided to have me give it a trial. I have taken it regularly, using nearly ten bottles. All the sores but two are healed and these are nearly well. I have thrown away my crutches as I can walk, go to school and do some work. I have a good appetite and feel good health and have increased in weight very much. Hood's Sarsaparilla has been a blessing to me." Wm. Johnson, Normalville, Pennsylvania.
